

Those $134.5 Billion In Bonds: Part of New World Order Intrigue Since 1938!

By Benjamin Fulford

There is a lot of confusion these days among people who still believe the Zionist web of lies formerly known as the "mainstream consensus." The story about the $134.5 billion in bonds found in Italy is adding to that confusion. Perhaps a bit of background information will help clarify the situation somewhat.

First of all people need to realize that there are two sets of books used in global finance: the "official" data put out by government agencies etc. and the secret financial arrangements used between sovereign entities (countries as well as organizations). When members of the British and Japanese royal families first contacted me and started talking about thousands of trillions of dollars, I thought they were bonkers. Officially world GDP is $55 trillion so their numbers seemed impossible.

However, after meeting multiple sources ranging from freemasons, to yakuza, to MI6 to Japanese security police, to CIA etc. I can now confirm there is a secret financial system whose total worth is "quintillions of dollars." I think the numbers got this big as a result of some sort of ridiculous contest to see who had the largest penis among the folk who control the printing presses for dollars and euros etc.

In any case, the bonds found in Italy are connected to a massive operation that took place in the Far East before and during WW2. Part of that involved the Japanese invasion of Manchuria. When the Japanese invaded Manchuria in 1931 the owners of the Federal Reserve Board contacted the Chinese emperor and said "the Japanese are about to steal the treasure you have in Manchuria. How about we take that treasure to the Philippines for safe keeping? In exchange we will give you 70-year US government bonds that you can use to buy stuff from around the world."

The emperor agreed to the deal and the Americans started issuing huge numbers of bonds backed by the emperor's gold. To keep these shenanigans out of the US public eye, they printed the bonds in the Philippines. Some of these bonds are the ones the two Japanese were carrying in Italy.

This whole thing also ties into 911 big time. When the emperor made his deal with the Feds he asked them what would happen when the bonds came due and the Feds refused to pay back the principal. He was told US criminal authorities would take action.

The owners of the Fed thought they would never have to pay back the money because they thought the last emperor died as a gardener in communist China. What they did not realize was that the man in China was a double and that the real emperor escaped to Taiwan. His grandson, the current emperor, is now the dean of a University (I know his name and what university but to protect him I cannot tell).

The grandson had many other treasures in addition to the one taken to the Philippines and so he sued the Feds using top lawyers. A giant investigation was set up in the US involving the Treasury police, the Naval Office of Investigations, the FBI and Cantor Fitzgerald Securities. When first bonds came due for redemption on September 12, 2001, they were set to move against the Feds.

Well by lucky coincidence on September 11, 2001 "AI CIADA" bombed the Naval Office of Investigations, etc. out of existence and the investigation was temporarily blocked as the US was turned into a fascist dictatorship (if you do not understand this find a copy of the Nazi laws and compare them to the patriot act).

There is now a secret war going on between the royal families who have real treasure (the British, the Chinese, the Thai etc.) and the aristocratic families who own dollar and Euro printing presses. At stake is the future of this planet. The owners of the real treasure want to start a new financial system backed by metals and start a campaign to permanently end war, poverty and environmental destruction. The owners of the money printing presses want to continue their cycle of perpetual war and terror in order to keep control over humanity.

The Japanese arrested in Italy were part of that secret war and they were released immediately and sent on their way with their bonds. There is so much contradictory information from the Italian Treasury Police, MI6 and Japanese military intelligence sources that I cannot say whose side these guys were on. I am just glad the astronomical numbers released to the corporate media created cognitive dissonance among the still brainwashed.

Protest leader in Iran was 'Butcher of Beirut' now working with CIA!

By Jeff Stein: He may yet turn out to be the avatar of Iranian democracy, but Mir-Hossein Mousavi waged a terrorist war on the U.S. including attacks on the U.S. embassy and Marine Corps barracks in Beirut.

Mousavi, prime minister for most of the 1980s, personally selected his point man for the Beirut terror campaign. The ambassador then hosted meetings of the cell that would carry out the Beirut attacks.

"We had a tap on the Iranian ambassador to Syria," retired Navy Admiral James "Ace" Lyons related by telephone. "He was prime minister," Lyons said of Mousavi, "so he was in a principal position and had to be aware of what was going on."

Lyons, sometimes called "the father" of the Navy SEALs' Red Cell counter-terror unit, also fingered Mousavi for the 1988 truck bombing in Naples, Italy, that killed 5. (Editor's Note: Lyons is slow to catch up to CIA/MI5 intrigue. Mousavi now co-operates with Brit intelligence MI-6 & CIA to overthrow Iranian moderate and independent government to simply grab Iranian oil which has been the target of the U.S. and Britain for decades.

Attempted smear reveals hate and contempt for Canadian sovereignty by Toronto lawyer attacking free speech and human rights

Typical of Toronto Zionists (not Jews) who feel comfortable with stepping on the homeless we find the comments below about spending money for a "good cause" to be false. Our vendors are the "good cause" in the sense that some members of society need money however small to get by with. Our vendors keep the money. That is the "good cause".

Dear Advertiser,

Perhaps you are unaware of the content of the Toronto Street News January 16 - 31 edition. Certainly I was, when I purchased a copy from a homeless person hoping that my spare change was going to a good cause and expecting that the newspaper likely reflected some positive community ideals. Editor's Note: Here's the lie and the smear as he refers to printed facts as propaganda: To my complete surprise the content of the newspaper was filled with anti-Israeli propaganda which was shockingly one sided (is there another side to Israeli war crimes against Palestinians that can be defended? As we reported with the help of Toronto Jewish supporters of Toronto Street News) We wonder? containing anti-semitic images of Jews with hooked noses and dressed in Nazi concentration camp clothes holding signs proclaiming "Israeli assassins" and other offensive comments.

(Another lie: The references here refer to more than one copy of the Toronto Street News so he is actually a regular reader and now has a hate agenda against free speech; when I contacted the internationally published cartoonist he assured us that there were no intended hooked noses nor were there any 'hooked noses'. Disappointingly, the 'hooked nose' issue attempts to create a stereotype against Jewish people which Toronto Street News copy never suggests) I urge you to review the repugnant contents of this paper and should you agree that it is offensive, you may wish to cancel your advertising or otherwise let your views be known to the publisher. Yours faithfully,

(The cowardly and hate-filled lawyer failed to contact us his concerns himself as he apparently knows he hasn't a foot to stand on. We suggest he go back to law school and learn what

"positive community ideals" actually means. War crimes do not constitute "positive community ideals" nor do attempted cover-ups of same. Israeli war crimes are a fact. The cartoon simply equated the distinct resemblance of Israeli troops in Gaza with Nazi troops of 1939 Warsaw.

We have reason to believe this lawyer is an associate of Bob Rae-Levine. The Sri Lankan secretary may be known to the 25 time visitor of Sri Lanka: Bob Rae-Levine. Previously Bob Rae-Levine has also made false and hateful charges against Toronto Street News wherein he denied he has a Maoist brother-in-law. Of course, poor Gary Perly died in the meantime.

Blacklisted Canuck Politician Sues Jewish Groups

TORONTO (JTA) -- An ex-candidate in Canada is suing the country's leading Jewish advocacy groups, alleging they ruined her political career.

Lesley Hughes, who was dumped as a Liberal candidate in a Winnipeg-area electoral district, claims the Canadian Jewish Congress and B'nai Brith, using a 6-year-old article, persuaded Dion Brith Canada made false and defamatory accusations that she is anti-Semitic.

In a lawsuit filed June 16, Hughes alleges that as a result of the actions of the CJC and B'nai Brith, former federal Liberal leader Stephen Dion revoked her candidacy in last September's federal elections.

Hughes is suing the organizations, four of its senior members and Peter Kent, now a federal Cabinet minister who represents a heavily Jewish Toronto-area district.

In her lawsuit Hughes acknowledges that in a 2002 article in a Winnipeg community newspaper, she repeated a variation of the Internet canard that legions of Jews avoided death in the 9/11 attack on the World Trade Center because the Mossad knew of the attacks in advance. "Israeli businesses, which had offices in the Towers, vacated the premises a week before the attacks, breaking their lease to do it," she wrote.

Hughes alleges in her suit that CJC and B'nai Brith, using a 6-year-old article, persuaded Dion to revoke her candidacy on the grounds that she was anti-Semitic and unfit for public office. She says Kent, then a Conservative candidate, issued a news release on Sept. 26, 2008 in which he said Hughes holds "extreme, anti-Israel 9/11 conspiracy theories" and was "unfit to serve for public office."

Hughes claims she has been "branded as an anti-Semite and a person of unsavory character and, as a result, is no longer employable in her role as a freelance journalist/broadcaster." She also says she has suffered mental distress and humiliation. None of the defendants has filed statements of defense, nor have any of the allegations been proven in court.

Forced Vaccinations For Canucks?

CC: Hon. Leona Aglukkaq, Minister of Health Minister Aglukkaq:

I am writing to request that your office make certain information regarding your intention to vaccinate all Canadians against this "H1N1" flu now, before a crisis develops:

1. Please advise Canadians of all available grounds for refusing vaccination, for example, religious or other exemptions.

Are you aware that literally, there are concerned citizens who would prefer to be shot than to be forced to take vaccines containing dangerous components?

Are you aware that polio vaccine delivered the Simian 40 cancer virus into millions, for example, and that many tumors show the presence of that virus in current day cancer patients, for example?

2. Please advise Canadians of your intentions for those who, knowing the dangers of today's harmful vaccine components, plan to refuse vaccination. Of critical importance is whether we will be allowed to QUARANTINE AT HOME.

Quarantine at home protects us from the danger of acquiring disease at quarantine camps, allows us to use such proven effective health supplements and purified water as we have at home, and allows us to protect our homes from looting.

3. Are you personally aware of the dangerous substances used in today's vaccines, such as:

- aluminum (implicated in Alzheimer's)
- mercury (implicated in neurological damage and autism)
- squalene, which can cause autoimmune disease?

4. Are you aware that flu kills by overreaction of the victim's immune system, triggering "cytokine storm" in the lungs?

5. Are you aware that high bio-availability vitamin C can be extremely effective against the flu, carrying many benefits and none of the risks of vaccines?

6. Are you aware that high quality (very finely divided or "nano") colloidal silver, nebulized and inhaled, can halt flu virus activity in the respiratory system, and like vitamin C, can moderate the flu without the risk of vaccines?

Please let all our citizens know your answers to these questions, the most critical being the right to quarantine at home for those who plan to refuse the vaccine.

Sincerely,
Eleanor White, Elliot Lake, Ontario

Rothschild Intrigues Kill Iranian Beauty For Oil, Destruction Of Independence?

Destabilization 2.0 Soros, the CIA, Mossad and the new media destabilization of Iran

James Corbett The Corbett Report

It's the 2009 presidential election in Iran and opposition leader Mir-Hossein Mousavi declares victory hours before the polls close, insuring that any result to the contrary will be called into question. (Editor's Note: CNBC Fast Money program repeated the lie that the Iranian government had been overturned). Western media goes into overdrive, fighting with each other to see who can offer the most hyperbolic denunciation of the vote and President Ahmadinejad's apparent victory (BBC wins by publishing bald-faced lies about the supposed popular uprising which it is later forced to retract). On June 13th, 30000 "tweets" begin to flood Twitter with live updates from Iran, most written in English and provided by a handful of newly-registered users with identical profile photos. The Jerusalem Post writes a story about the Iran Twitter phenomenon a few hours after it starts (and who says Mossad isn't staying up to date with new media?). Now, YouTube is providing a "Breaking News" link at the top of every page linking to the latest footage of the Iranian protests (all shot in high def, no less). Welcome to Destabilization 2.0, the latest version of a program that the western powers have been running for decades in order to overthrow foreign, democratically elected governments that do not yield to the whims of western governments and multinational corporations.

Ironically, Iran was also the birthplace of the original CIA program for destabilizing a foreign government. Think of it as Destabilization 1.0: It's 1953 and democratically-elected Iranian leader Mohammed Mossadegh is following through on his election promises to nationalize the industry for the Iranian people, including the oil industry of Iran which was then controlled by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. The CIA is sent into the country to bring an end to Mossadegh's government. They begin a campaign of terror, staging bombings and attacks on Muslim targets in order to blame them on nationalist, secular Mossadegh. They foster and fund an anti-Mossadegh campaign amongst the radical Islamist elements in the country. Finally, they back the revolution that brings their favoured puppet, the Shah, into power. Within months, their mission had been accomplished: they had removed a democratically elected leader who threatened to build up an independent, secular Persian nation and replaced him with a repressive tyrant whose secret police would brutally suppress all opposition. The campaign was a success and the lead CIA agent wrote an after-action report describing the operation in glowing terms. The pattern was to be repeated time and time again in country after country (in Guatemala in 1954, in Afghanistan in the 1980s, in Serbia in the 1990s), but these operations leave the agency open to exposure. What was needed was a different plan, one where the western political and financial interests puppeteering the revolution would be more difficult to implicate in the overthrow.

Enter Destabilization 1.1. This version of the destabilization program is less messy, offering plausible deniability for the western powers who are overthrowing a foreign government. It starts when the IMF moves in to offer a bribe to a tinpot dictator in a third world country. He gets 10% in exchange for taking out an exorbitant loan for an infrastructure project that the country can't afford. When the country inevitably defaults on the loan payments, the IMF begins to take over, imposing a restructuring program

Iranian envoy: CIA involved in Neda's shooting?

* Ambassador to Mexico says CIA or other intelligence service may be to blame

* Envoy says foreign forces wanted to use bloodshed against Iranian government

* Media aren't reporting on pro-Ahmadinejad demonstrations, he says updated 8:05 p.m. EDT, Thu June 25, 2009

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (CNN) -- The U.S. may have been behind the killing of Neda Agha-Soltan, the 26-year-old Iranian woman whose fatal videotaped shooting Saturday made her a symbol of opposition to the June 12 presidential election results, the country's ambassador to Mexico said Thursday.

Neda Agha-Soltan, 26, was shot to death in Tehran. "This death of Neda is very suspicious," Ambassador Mohammad Hassan Ghadiri said. "My question is, how is it that this Miss Neda is shot from behind, got shot in front of several cameras, and is shot in an area where no significant demonstration was behind held?"

that eventually results in the full scale looting of the country's resources for western business interests. This program, too, was run in the country after country, from Jamaica to Myanmar, from Chile to Zimbabwe. The source code for this program was revealed in 2001, however, when former World Bank chief economist Joseph Stiglitz went public about the scam. More detail was added in 2004 by the publication of John Perkin's Confessions of an Economic Hitman, which revealed the extent to which front companies and complicit corporations aided, abetted and facilitated the economic plundering and overthrow of foreign governments. Although still an effective technique for overthrowing foreign nations, the fact that this particular scam had been exposed meant that the architects of global geopolitics would have to find a new way to get rid of foreign, democratically elector governments. Destabilization 1.2 involves seemingly disinterested, democracy promoting NGOs with feelgood names like the Open Society Institute, Freedom House and the National Endowment for Democracy. They code for this program, fund, train, support and mobilize opposition movements in countries that have been targeted for destabilization, often during elections and usually organized around an identifiable color. These "color revolutions" sprang up in the past decade and have so far successfully destabilized the governments of the Ukraine, Lebanon, Georgia and Kyrgyzstan, among others. These revolutions bear the imprint of billionaire finance oligarch George Soros. The hidden hand of western powers behind these color revolutions has threatened their effectiveness in recent years, however, with an anti-Soros movement having arisen in Georgia and with the recent Moldovan "grape revolution" having come to naught (much to the chagrin of Soros-funded OSI's Evgeny Morozov).

Now we arrive at Destabilization 2.0, really not much more than a slight tweak of Destabilization 1.2. The only thing different is that now Twitter, Facebook, YouTube and other social media are being employed to amplify the effect of (and the impression of) internal protests. Once again, Soros henchman Evgeny Morozov is extolling the virtues of the new Tehran Twitter revolution and the New York Times is writing journalistic hymns to the power of internet new media... when it serves western imperial interests. We are being asked to believe that this latest version of the very (very) old program of U.S. corporate imperialism is the real deal. While there is no doubt that the regime of Ahmadinejad is reprehensible and the feelings of many of the young protestors in Iran are genuine, you will forgive me for questioning the motives behind the monolithic media support for the overthrow of Iran's government and the installation of Mir-Hossein "Butcher of Beirut" Mousavi.

He suggested that the CIA or another intelligence service may have been responsible. "Well, if the CIA wants to kill some people and attribute that to the government elements, then choosing women is an appropriate choice, because the death of a woman draws more sympathy," Ghadiri said.

Though the video appeared to show that she had been shot in the chest, Ghadiri said that the bullet was found in her head and that it was not of a type used in Iran.

"These are the methods that terrorists, the CIA and spy agencies employ," he said. "Naturally, they would like to see blood spilled in these demonstrations, so that they can use it against the Islamic Republic of Iran. This is of the common methods that the CIA employs in various countries."

But, he added, "I am not saying that now the CIA has done this. There are different groups. It could be the [work of another] intelligence service; it could be the CIA; it could be the terrorists. Anyway, there are people who employ these types of methods."

Asked about his government's imposition of restrictions on reporting by international journalists, Ghadiri blamed the reporters themselves. "Some of the reporters and mass media do not reflect the truth," he said.

For example, he said, international news organizations have lavished coverage on demonstrations by supporters of Mir Hossein Mousavi, whom the government has said lost to the incumbent President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad by a landslide.

But those same news organizations have not shown "many, many demonstrations in favor of the winner," he said. "Further, he said, members of the international news media have failed to report on people setting banks and buses afire or attacking other people. "The only things they show are the reactions of the police," he said.

Ghadiri said it is only fair that security forces protect the lives and property of the Iranian people. "If in America supporters of Mr. McCain had gotten out on the street and tried to burn the banks during the last election, do you think the police would just sit idly by and be a spectator?" he asked, referring to the GOP presidential candidate who lost the presidential vote in November to Barack Obama.

Ghadiri called on backers of Mousavi to "accept the majority's victory." Ahmadinejad's overwhelming victory was no surprise, Ghadiri said, noting that a poll published in the U.S. 3 weeks before the June 12 elections showed Ahmadinejad with a commanding lead. "Why don't you show that?" he asked.

Ghadiri also addressed questions about the rapid reporting of the election results, which the opposition has cited as evidence that the ballots were not properly counted. "It wasn't said that only four people counted the 40 million votes," he said. "There were tens of thousands of people in Iran who counted these votes. They declared that this is very simple."
